Africana Studies minor is housed in the College of Liberal Arts and may be associated with any major. Fifteen credit hours (AFRI 2000 and four electives) are required for the Africana Studies minor. To enroll in AFRI 2000, students must have completed freshman composition and have sophomore standing.

"The Africana Studies program testifies to the limitless power of an Africanist presence in the academy. Africana Studies courses advance social consciousness by connecting historical moments to current affairs and encouraging academic and social inclusiveness at Auburn University. Undoubtedly, the program’s professors, courses, and opportunities have greatly enriched and guided my academic career and commitment to social justice." Jazzmin Carr, Auburn University 2015, Harvard Law 2018.
