Justice Is Rising: Creating A World That Works For All

Join No Impact Week 2016 for a workshop that explores the role of social justice in creating a thriving, just, and sustainable world for all. From #BlackLivesMatter to women's leadership to climate justice, today's social movements are transforming culture and opening up possibilities for systemic change like we have never seen before.

Led by Barbara Jefferson and Joshua Gorman from the national social change organization Generation Waking Up, this workshop will explore the nature of social justice today, the connections between issues, and the role we each play in making a difference.

Justice is rising, here at Auburn University, and around the world.

March 29, 2016 • 4 pm
Student Center
Room 2222

Seating is limited. RSVP to janskma@auburn.edu by March 11
For more information, visit auburn.edu/NIW or contact Dr. Giovanna Summerfield at summegi@auburn.edu